

Glen Garioch 1991

54.7%

Distilled at Glen Garioch when peated barley was still being used, this 1991 vintage is quite reticent on the nose, considering its strength. Subtle malt and fudge notes, plus a hint of wood smoke. Fresh fruits and a sherbet 'zing' on the palate, with a suggestion of treacle. Developing spicy smokiness. Fruitiness is emphasized when water is added. The 'zing' — now ginger — lasts to the end of the medium-length finish, with advancing, discreet oak. (Only 120 bottles for the U.S.)
