

Stillhouse Coconut Moonshine

20%

Of all the flavors you'd expect to see in the moonshine space, coconut is probably the last. Stillhouse's Coconut Moonshine has a coconut cream nose with a touch of milk chocolate that's actually inviting. On the palate it's creamy, chocolatey coconut with just a hint of corn whiskey. The mid-palate lacks some structure, with only a touch of spice. The finish is also a little muted, but damn if they didn't make a coconut moonshine that isn't horrid.

—Vol. 23, #4