

Duncan Taylor (distilled at Glen Grant)

Cask #3480, 37 year old, 51.5%

I am amazed by how many old, sherried Glen Grant whiskies have been released to the market in the past ten years. (Did the distillery owners at the time also own sherry bodegas, or what?)

Anyway, some of these have been dark, decadent, and delicious, and I'll put this whisky in that category. Chestnut colored, with lush fruit, treacle, dark chocolate, leather, tobacco, roasted walnuts, and cherry cough syrup. A complex, well-structured whisky.
