

Cutty Sark

25 year old, 45.7%

Well-structured and masculine with its rich malty backbone and mouth-coating fruit. Yet, there's a silky, seductive underbelly that's very compelling. Notes of sultana, honey-drenched mandarin, ripe peach, thick toffee, and anise, with a peppering of spice throughout, especially toward the finish, where a hint of smoke emerges. The grain whisky enhances the blend's allure by cutting through the whisky's viscosity, making it very more-ish. I love the combination of drinkability, flavor, complexity, and balance in this blend. Very versatile. Single malt drinkers will thoroughly enjoy this experience. (Note: at this time, this whisky is not sold in the U.S.)
